

Quaestum Editorial

Since 2015 Revisa iPecege has published scientific articles in the areas of agribusiness and business management. Thinking about the improvement of the journal, several modifications were put in place in order to expand its visibility and meet the criteria of the main international index bases. Among those adjustments, the name of the journal was changed to Quaestum. Additionally, an Editorial Advisory Board was put together, with Professors from important international Universities.

Therefore, we are pleased to introduce the first issue of Quaestum, which has the same main purpose of Revita iPecege: to contribute with the propagation of knowledge developed by the Brazilian and International scientific community in the Applied Social Sciences areas.

Following the trends of the main Scientific Journals, the publication process has become continuous. The submitted articles will always be sent to two reviewers who will follow the double blind review process, that is, the reviewers will not know who the authors are, nor the authors will know who are the reviewers.

Quaestum is linked to Pecege and its intention is to bring scientific research closer to society through the published articles. We then invite the scientific community to not only read the articles published in the journal, but also to submit their own articles for consideration and opportune publication by the periodical.

Humberto Francisco Silva Spolador, D.Sc.
Editor-in-Chief